Sway

Clouds clawing the scab of Sun, that bleeds onto the flanks of hills, their fur shimmering green, Wind scattering the Light across the Lake, silver splinters splitting its Skin.
I stand on the path, my eyes drinking in the aftermath of the storm,
the tall grasses that fringe the path, trampled by Rain, dented by Wind, their spines bent, others broken, the spaces where they swayed, flattened, as they lay on the ground, entangled with wild flowers and weeds.
I bend down, my fingers grazing the blades of their spines,
dewdrops drenching my finger tips, as they roam through the carnage of the storm.
My hand pauses in midair, as I stare at the head of a flower,
sprouting from the grass.
My Heart hiccups in my chest, when I see that the shred of rust isn't a flower at all, but a butterfly breathing with only one wing, its other one tattered to bits.
I stare at the monarch, with the wounded wing,
watch it flap in the Air without getting anywhere, trapped in this nest of tall grasses, pummelled by the storm.
I wonder what happened to its wing, whether it was the Rain or Wind, or something else that shredded it?
My heartbeat slows to the rhythm of the monarch flapping its one good wing, the current of my Breath blowing on it, like wind, willing it to fly.
I cannot pry my eyes away from its tattered wing,
how the monarch clings to the blade of grass.
Both of them broken, both of them Alive.
I listen to my Heart heaving in my chest, as I squat inside this nest of green,
the squawks of seagulls silencing my Breath,
as I glance up to watch their wings glide across Sky,
strong and smooth as this butterfly, that still flaps
its remaining wing, hoping maybe that it will fly, like the blade of grass on which it rests, that will rise from its nest and sway in the breeze again.

Quilt show celebrates guild's 20th anniversary

Minden's community centre will be wrapped in the handmade artworks of members of the Haliburton Highlands Quilt Guild on the weekend of Sept. 9 and 10.

The group's quilt show, held every second year, will fill the space with creative works including full size quilts, wall-hangings and other items.

Shirlee Weeks, a member of the guild, said there are about 100 women who are part of the group and many of their works will be for sale over the weekend.

Admission is $6 (there is also the option of partaking in the luncheon, which is $5). The show is the only fundraiser the guild holds, with donations going to their various projects such as their donations to the auxiliary quilt raffle, lap quilts for patients coming home from the hospital, and other charity projects.

The show is Saturday, Sept. 9 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, Sept. 10, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Minden Community Centre.

(If you'd like to join the guild, their meetings are the second Wednesday of each month at the Stanhope Community Centre from 1 to 3 p.m.)

Time for a breather, or two

GEORGE FARRELL

Special to County Life

Even though the weather in the Highlands this summer has left a lot to be desired, the damp conditions have had a beneficial side. At the cultural centre, in Minden, visits have been up significantly over last year.

"The weather's so bad that we decided to see what's here," are words I've heard innumerable times over the past eight weeks, while I've been on duty at Nature's Place, a part of the cultural centre. Or, another refrain: "We've been cottaging for years and never knew this place was here." So it would seem that the bad weather has induced many cottagers and visitors to leave the lake and go out and discover all the wonderful things that are happening in and around Minden, and other parts of the county.

But for year-round residents, no matter what the weather, summer is always busy, and there's very little time for many workers to have fun. I've yet to go swimming this year, for instance, but at least this spell of recent, decent weather, has given Michelle and I the energy and impetus to attend a couple of local events.

The singer/songwriter evening at the Rails End Gallery in Haliburton, on Aug. 24, featuring Steve Payne, Noah Zacharin, and our own Albert Saxby, was simply brilliant. Payne with his flawless and riveting guitar stylings, and laid-back, been-there-done-that vocals, meshed perfectly with Zacharin's impressive guitar licks and equally impressive vocal nuances, while Saxby was perhaps the most effective storyteller of the three, with his insightful lyrics, clear delivery and wry humour. Zacharin and Payne accompanied each other while Saxby looked on with appreciation. Then, when Saxby sang, the other two would accompany him, which gave the "Mayor of Essonville's" songs added resonance. It was a heady evening and I left feeling both uplifted and also totally envious of so much musical talent.

We also managed to attend the Pride picnic was held on Sunday, Aug. 28. It was a beautiful sunny day, and we entered the riverside domain of the Wild Swan B&B and joined the afternoon visitors and revellers who were listening to the dulcet tones of Cassidy Glecoff. We didn't stay long, but long enough, after Cassidy had finished her set, to give a listen to Shawn Chamberlin on keys, backing Sheri Hawkins. She's an excellent singer, and like Saxby, is one of our musical treasures. As we listened it came as a bit of a shock to realize that I've known Sheri going on 30 years now.

The picnic also gave me a bit of time to reflect on just how much the gay presence has impacted our communities, especially Minden Hills, where several successful business, which are owned and operated by gay or lesbian couples have rejuvenated both town, and township. I reflect too on the time when I was going through a particularly tough spell, years ago in Toronto when it was my gay friends who helped pull me through. Sinclair Russell, who has been instrumental in getting more recognition for the LGBTQ community here, and who was languidly enjoying the picnic, ensconced in a lawn chair, could easily have been one of those friends. We know so many of the same people from our years in Toronto. We never met then, but we attended many of the same functions and our social circles overlapped. Now whenever we get together, invariably at the Dominion Hotel, or the Boshkung pub, we can always conjure up another outrageous story, about outrageous people we knew, back in the day.

After we left the picnic we headed over to deck at that Boshkung pub on Water Street. There we indulged in some excellent local brews and ordered wonderful sausages on buns, barbecued to perfection by friend Jerry Wills, who used to own and operate the Gravity bistro in Minden, before his daughter Leila took over.

After a bit of a rough spell health-wise, Jerry is looking great and is enjoying his time at Boshkung. Things slacked off a bit for him as the afternoon wore on, and he came and joined us over another brew. How pleasant it was to be warmed by the afternoon sun and to sit on a beautiful deck, with Robert Van Nood's excellent cartoon artwork of the four seasons as one backdrop, and the behaving-for-now Gull River as the other. On that particular afternoon we were able to exhale in relaxation, totally enjoy the moment, and silently give thanks to all that we have here in the Highlands. Now, back to work for a few last busy days, before the kids going back to school gives us all time for another breather or two.

Marchand and Corin of Garlicloves answered plenty of questions about the 22 different varieties of garlic they grow in Bexley.

Abbey Gardens was packed with hungry garlic-lovers who browsed various booths looking for delectable treats.

The 10th annual Garlic Fest attracted a large crowd again this year, its second year at Abbey Gardens near West Guilford. The grounds were covered with people on Aug. 27 who came to learn about growing the flavourful bulbs and to fill their shopping bags with delicious foods. Photos by Sue Tiffin

Exploring the nature of Canadian cuisine

Calming down on Head Lake. By Jenn Watt

LAURIE CARMOUNT
Special to County Life

This fall offers a number of new programs at the Minden Hills Cultural Centre.

The Agnes Jamieson Gallery has a new exhibition titled Fragment 47 by Nancy Anne McPhee. The exhibition is based on a fragment of a poem from Sappho, a Greek poet from 600BC. The opening reception and artist talk is Friday afternoon, starting at 4:30 p.m.

The gallery is also offering new fall art classes for youth. Two sessions will be available at a cost of $40 per session for each youth. The first session is Saturday, Sept. 23 and 30; the second session is Oct. 14 and 21. Each session is scheduled from 9:30 a.m. to 12 p.m. This is an excellent opportunity for youth, who enjoy art, to further develop their skill. They will use a variety of art materials, from pen and ink to acrylic painting, watercolours and digital graphic work in mixed media. Shannon Schutt, a professional artist, instructs the classes. To register, call the gallery at 705-286-3763.

On Sept. 16 and 17, the Minden Hills Cultural Centre will be the host for 2017 Minden's Doors Open. The Minden Hills Museum will be offering heritage food on both days.

As Canadians, we often struggle to answer the question of "what is Canadian cuisine?" Much of our food style consists of meals inspired and acquired from cultures around the world. Early settlers learned lots from First Nations' cuisines and recipes, which were developed with the country's regional, environmental and seasonal changes in mind. This is why it isn't surprising that Quebec's tourtières (meat pies) were such a quintessential part of New France's cuisine in the 1600s, because many First Nations were creating pemmican (a dried ground meat and berry mix) and cooking bison as part of their meals and had been doing so for hundreds of years.

The Cook Not Mad: Or, Rational Cookery was first published in 1830 in Watertown, N.Y., and only a year later in Canada by the Kingston editor James Macfarlane. It is often referred to as "Canada's first cookbook." It provides short descriptions of recipes. The cookbook's recipes are simple, often vague instructions, without measurements, temperature or time, which could leave many modern cooks questioning their skills. However, with some research and possibly a republished and revised version of the cookbook from 1961, those interested would have 310 amazing historic recipes and household remedies fit for any contemporary pioneer.

Historic food is a passion for many people. Parkwood Estate in Oshawa has the Museum Morsels group, which prepares food and works on historical recipes; Fort York has the Historic Foodways program that allows people to do workshops and learn how to cook on an open hearth; the Pickering Museum Village has a volunteer historical food club called Vintage Victuals that creates food for special events. As the harvest season approaches the Minden Hills Museum is preparing for our Food Fare on Saturday, Sept. 16 and 17 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. This event will allow visitors to taste, touch and try different food from the 19th century. There will be costumed demonstrators on the grounds, as well as activities for kids. The event days will coincide with the Minden Hills Doors Open. Make sure to stop by for a visit.

The museum will also be hosting our first annual haunted scavenger hunt on Saturday, Oct. 28 from 7 to 10 p.m. This is a 16 years-plus event. Bring your running shoes and disguise, team themes are advised. This scavenger hunt will stretch your brain and your quads; you never know who you might run into, dead or alive. For more information please call 705-286-3154 or email at roconnell@mindenhills.ca.

Ten 'different' things to do

STEVE GALEA
Humour Columnist

WHEN YOU peruse this publication, you'll see that there are plenty of things to keep a person occupied here in Haliburton County. Having said that, some of us would rather walk the road less travelled, which is typically one with lots of potholes.

If you are one of those people, this column is for you.

Here are 10 things you can do to be different.

1. Sort fallen leaves in piles according to colour.
2. Three words: moustache hair extensions.
3. Take a selfie and keep it to your selfie.
4. Crazy glue acorns onto maple trees.
5. Drill holes in apples to create nesting boxes for worms.
6. Fill in potholes with dirt from other potholes.
7. Mail a letter to yourself and when you get it mark it "Return to sender."
8. Take Chinese pots on a houseboat so you can tell everyone you once woked on water.
9. Message all your Facebook friends and ask for help moving.
10. Wear a shirt promoting parmesan cheese that says, "Make America Grate Again."

Hospital auxiliary has banner year

JENN WATT
County Life Editor

Fundraising went especially well this year for the Haliburton Hospital Auxiliary with about $70,000 coming in for several important projects.

Donations went to creating the compassionate care room at Highland Wood long-term care unit; creating an accessible washroom in the emergency department and refurbishing the current washroom; and replacing the complete blood count analyzer.

"All in all, by the end of the time when we pay the bills, it should be close to $70,000 [for the 2016-2017 fiscal year]," said auxiliary president Jacqui Clarkson.

That amount was much more than is expected in a year, and this coming season, the auxiliary will continue with its usual fundraising amount of $40,000.

"This year, it's going to be equipment, both medical and non-medical, that's needed in the hospital," she said, but was not yet able to give the final list of items.

The compassionate care room had a price of about $25,000, she said, which included outfitting a space at the nursing home with more comfortable furniture and appliances to allow friends and family of the resident using the room to spend time there.

A sleeping chair was purchased for visitors along with a small fridge and microwave, a bathroom cabinet, TV and table mount, call-bell system, kitchen cabinet with some dishes, lamp with dimmer, night-light and other items.

The auxiliary also spent some of the money on a blanket warmer for use at Highland Wood.

In the emergency department, about $18,000 was spent on washrooms.

One of the facilities is having updated plumbing installed, while the other is being created with accessibility in mind.

The complete blood count, or CBC, analyzer is replacing older equipment. A CBC analyzer is used to screen for various blood-related issues and is used at the Haliburton hospital several times a day, Clarkson said.

To pay for all of the purchases, fundraising is constantly being undertaken. The popular international dinner (formerly the Italian dinner) planned for Oct. 21 is nearly sold out with about a dozen tickets left as of press time. Tickets are available at the gift shop in Haliburton or by calling Clarkson at 705-754-9851.

The auxiliary also sells tickets for its wheelbarrow of wine raffle and quilt raffle through the gift shop. Its annual open house will be Dec. 3 this year with the big bake sale and draw for the wheelbarrow of wine.

"We also have our ornaments," said Clarkson, who suggested this is likely the last year members will be making and selling the Christmas treasures. "They're available through us or the gift shop."

The ornaments are little angels made of wood and handpainted with unique expressions.

New auxiliary members are always warmly welcomed by the organization. You can either get in touch with Clarkson or Brigitte Gebauer, who is the volunteer co-ordinator for Community Support Services. You can also attend their meetings the first Wednesday of the month at 1 p.m. at the Ruth Parkes Room at the Haliburton hospital.

Since its inception in 1971, the Haliburton Hospital Auxiliary has raised $1.3 million for health-care services.

"When you consider we're a little town in the woods, that's not too bad," said Clarkson. "Our volunteers are fabulous."

Step into the Past at the Haliburton Highlands Museum!

Local history is always is season! This autumn, take time to enjoy the beautiful seasonal colours in Glebe Park and visit the Haliburton Highlands Museum! Historic Reid House is open until Thanksgiving weekend, while the museum's main gallery is open year round, featuring thousands of artifacts connected to our local history and heritage. In the winter months, Glebe Park becomes a wonderland of ski and snowshoe trails - don't forget that snowshoes can be borrowed free of charge any time the museum is open. Our autumn and winter schedule is packed with fun events and programs for both kids and adults - make sure to join us for our Nostalgic Christmas celebration and our annual Maple Fest celebration during March Break. There's always something exciting going on at the museum - check out our website or contact us for the latest details!

Planning for Random Acts of Green

ROBERT MACKENZIE
County Life Staff

After creating a social media movement educating the public about the difference they can make in fighting climate change, Jessica Correa will be coming to Haliburton to share with participants how they can get involved in their community.

Correa was studying for her master's degree in sustainability studies at Trent University when she came up with the idea for Random Acts of Green, a social media account that raises awareness about environmental action by creating, capturing and sharing green choices people make in their day-to-day activities.

Correa says the social media account – which is active on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram – was inspired by the Humans of New York series. Correa's Random Acts of Green posts are usually accompanied by a picture and a brief description of some of the simple, everyday green choices that people have sent to her or that she has captured herself in the Peterborough area.

One of the account's recent popular posts was of a man who brought a reusable plate to Peterborough's Ribfest instead of throwing out Styrofoam containers after everything he ate. During the height of the Pokémon Go craze last summer, Random Acts of Green was covered by CBC radio after Correa organized a garbage pickup that saw people in Peterborough pick up litter as they were walking around and playing the game.

"What really inspired me about combining social media with this awareness about climate change and about what you can do about it was that a lot of these challenges and a lot of these viral videos [is how]they really take off," Correa said. "I thought that if we could combine all these different ideas, put it online, put it on social media, we could really create a movement and a community of change."

On Sept. 12, Correa will be giving a presentation as part of Environment Haliburton's latest enviro-cafe. The enviro-cafe talks are held on the second Tuesday of every month and aim to encourage a wide conversation while organizing collective and personal action through presentations on topical environmental issues, according to Environment Haliburton VP Terry Moore.

Correa says her presentation will focus on inspiring people and how to be a part of innovative forms of environmental messaging through social media. "The presentation is going to be about ways in which they can implement behaviour change, ways in which social media is a great platform and a great resource to inspire people to change their behaviour," she said.

The Sept. 12 enviro-cafe will start at 7:30 p.m. at the Haliburton United Church, with time for questions to follow Correa's presentation. The event is free of charge.

While she was completing her master's degree at Trent University, Jessica Correa started Random Acts of Green, a social media campaign giving praise to small, everyday green choices people make. Correa will be speaking at Environment Haliburton's Sept. 12 enviro-cafe about using social media for environmental messaging. /Submitted

Will that be one squirt or two?

Minden Hills Reeve Ross Rigney and his wife Lois try their hands at milking the old fashioned way at the Haliburton County Fair's "Dignitary Milk-Off" Saturday afternoon. The event, part of the opening ceremonies, drew an enthusiastic crowd of spectators to cheer on their favourite, including Deputy Reeve Jim McMahon, watching the action in the background. Councillor Bill Obee, Fair president Sue Eskeline and municipal auditor Gary Thurston. For more photos from this year's fair, see page 15.

Despite showers

Fire ban still in place

by Jerry Grozelle

Don't be lulled into thinking the little bit of rain that occurred late last week diminished the severity of the fire danger.

"The fire ban is still on," said Dave Brown, Fire Management Supervisor with the Ministry of Natural Resources Friday afternoon. "The rain didn't help the drought codes."

Brown explained that the drought codes are an indication of the dryness of materials in the bush. The build-up index is a measurement of the material that will burn, from the duff layer (ground cover) to trees. We are currently still in the extreme range in terms of drought code. A rating of 71 is considered extreme and Brown said there are some places within the coverage area that are at 160.

Brown said there are currently four

Limberlost moving in later this year

Outdoor furniture manufacturer moving to business park

Owner Richard Graesser on the site of the new Limberlost plant in Minden.

by Jerry Grozelle

The first official sale of land in the Minden Business Park has been completed.

Michael Johnson and Associates and 1465069 Ontario Limited, a developer, has purchased property fronting on the east side of what is unofficially called Booth Crescent, next to Highway 35. The developer will construct a building for Limberlost, a manufacturer of western red cedar leisure furniture, which is now based in Fort Irwin.

Minden Hills council passed a by-law at a special meeting on August 14 authorizing the sale of the 515 foot by 500 foot parcel of land in the Minden Business Park to the developer for $25,000. The deal closed the following day.

Richard and Carolynne Graesser are the owners of Limberlost. Richard started the business when he retired from the computer business four years ago.

"Woodworking has always been my hobby, he said. "Now its my business."

The Limberlost products are all designed by Richard. Carolynne handles the business end, including production scheduling. Richard started the business four years ago "for something to
